Re: Fuel Surcharges from UPS

Dear Mr. Elliott,

I am writing to you in frustration that UPS is continuing to charge clients a fuel surcharge despite the fact that gas prices have dropped significantly. When gas prices hit an all-time high, UPS sent a letter to their customers explaining that a fuel surcharge was necessary in order to keep up with the ever increasing price of fuel. This was understandable as all consumers were struggling with this issue. But now that the gas prices have dropped to an all-time low, even less than they were originally, the only ethical and fair practice would be to discontinue charging its customers the extra fuel surcharge expense.

Please let me know how a large corporation can continue to conduct business in this manner. I can be reached to discuss further at 973-403-9500 or jonathan\_cohen@cohenins.com

Sincerely,

Jonathan J. Cohen
President
