Recently the Canadians have offered to increase our train supply, to reduce truck pollution. But if they reduce trucks, then they will reduce truck drivers. People who are truck drivers normally, are people who never went to college. In a short amount of time truck drivers and their families would go hungry. Increasing these trains it will also up traffic. Barrington already has enough traffic as it is, and with traffic up cars will be on the roads longer wasting gasoline. And with wasting natural gas, the air pollution will be terrible, and since people will be using more gas we will be using more oil from the middle east. Now, what will hunger, pollution, and traffic do for the community?
